What is open access (OA)?

Under the OA model, an article is

- ▶ immediately made available online when published, and
- ▶ free to read for anyone in the world, rather than only to subscribing readers or institutions.
- ▶ The article is made available under a Creative Commons CC-BY licence, and
- ▶ this CC-BY licence allows anyone to reuse, share, or build upon the work.

Advantages for researchers OA articles are...

immediately accessible and highly discoverable

cited more than non-OA articles

downloaded more often attract more attention

editorial rigour is the same or even greater than in non-OA publishing

Unfortunately... publishing under Open Access licence is usually not free, an Article Processing Charge (APC) must be paid.

EIS - programme

- ▶ PPCU is a member institution of EIS - Electronic Information Service - Hungarian National Programme.
- ▶ EIS - its mission is to purchase and make available essential electronic information resources for higher education and scientific research.
- ▶ Read and Publish agreements cover APC (Article Processing Charge) costs for authors affiliated with the participating institutions.
- ▶ Pázmány Péter Catholic University (PPCU) is a member of EIS.
- ▶ Thus our researchers, incl. our PhD students, are eligible authors to benefit from EIS agreements.

How to publish without APC?

- ▶ If your university has arranged a deal that allows for open access publishing (free of charge) for corresponding authors affiliated with the university, then you do not have to pay the APC.
- ▶ Read and Publish agreements cover the costs of publishing in the journals included in the agreements.
- ▶ Article Processing Charges (APCs): Not all of the journals in the agreements allow for fully open access publishing!
- ▶ Check for databases PPCU subscribes to under Open Access agreements
- ▶ Check OA title lists provided by the EIS office
<http://eisz.mtak.hu/index.php/en>

Requirements for free OA-publishing

The author or a co-author should be affiliated with PPCU

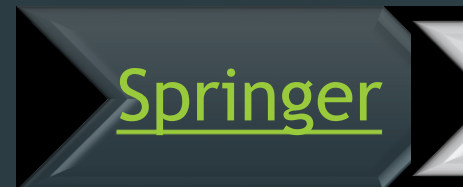

The affiliated author must be the corresponding author

Other requirements that might vary between journals and publishers
- check their EIS descriptions for these
